

THE INTERWOVEN

These colourful installations reflect my experiences as a person with disability and identifying on the lgbtq spectrum. Bright and dark colours represent my mixed feelings towards navigating sexuality and sexual wellness in healthcare settings, the interwoven lines build a tight network but often there are uncomfortable struggles during interactions due to misunderstandings from each healthcare professional. Despite any negativity, I try to stay optimistic that further education and discussion about these issues will build more awareness among the healthcare community and would become more accepting of differences.
